

Student Life with Outdoor Education

We are pleased to offer this exciting, adventure-based opportunity in the desert southwest. These shared adventures enhance current therapeutic work by increasing group cohesion, fostering social learning, and developing psychological resilience through physical and emotional challenge. At Monarch School, we work to capitalize on previously learned experiences as we help students transition to new phases in life. Since most of our students are referred from a wilderness treatment program, this orientation trip allows students to reflect on their experiences and build upon the self-sufficiency they developed in the wilderness. Students honor each other's recent accomplishments and, in the company of their new Monarch School peers, establish their intent for the coming months. Please visit us online in the coming weeks to see pictures and tales from our trip.
